

Community Health Centers Ensure Access to Health Care in their Communities

Community Health Centers (CHCs) offer services to all residents in their service areas, accept all types of insurance coverage, and offer a sliding fee based on income for the uninsured.

In many communities, CHCs are the only provider open to new patients without restrictions, which is especially important for Medicaid patients and people without health insurance.

¹NH CHC self reported 2014 data, including FQHCs; Statewide data from Kaiser Family Foundation statehealthfacts.org.